In this assignment we were given data set of various stocks so first we imported all the csv file in our created schema assignment and than we used various operations on the dataset to find the 20 days moving average and 50 days moving average and than using that data we analyzed that a person should buy/sell/hold a stock on a particular date